eBay please explain how a seller can:

(1) Have many multiple quantity listings of USED electronic devices, but only use stock images of one of the USED devices to represent each USED device when each USED device's wear and tear can vary widely.

Stock photos for USED devices are not allowed. In most cases sellers might use stock photos of new devices to represent USED devices but that ban also applies to stock photos of a single USED to represent multiple USED quantities of the same device. Both are deceptive as what you get is not going to match what is shown due to wear and tear.

These listings have been on eBay for months and you've not detected them.

They've been reported to you now three times and you've done nothing!

(2) How does said seller have YouTube channel in which he repeatedly mentions his eBay store in every video description in order to:

(a) Sell off eBay courses about selling on eBay.

(b) Sell bulk lots of goods on a off eBay site that he claims people can sell on eBay using his courses.

(c) Selling tools and other items, from Amazon, that you might find useful for selling on eBay.

(d) Selling tax software on a off eBay site.

(e) Selling CPA services on a off eBay site.

(f) Selling items on a Facebook group.

Using your eBay account to solicit off eBay income, especially from eBay competitors is not allowed!

(3) How is someone who was sued by Sprint for fraud and lost a $5 million dollar lawsuit against them allowed to sell on eBay?

The judge ruled (as quoted from web site documenting the case):

The judge ruled said eBay seller and his business partner/fiancé had committed:

- Trademark infringement
- False advertising
- Computer fraud
- Common law fraud
- Unfair competition
- Civil conspiracy
- Tortious interference
- Fraudulent misrepresentation

What you described in your OP is not a "stock" photo.

Against eBay policy!

Stock photos for used items are not allowed!

Stock photos do not represent the item you are actually going to receive.

Its called fraud!

You mentioned a photo that shows heavy oxidation - that's not a stock photo.

Except of course I sold online for more than two decades.

Or perhaps its someone concerned about an obvious scammer using his eBay account to sell fake eBay selling courses to newbs and bulk loads of used items that he can't unload himself on eBay.

I sense a eBay apologist willing to make any excuses for eBay so long as their backs get rubbed by eBay regardless of what that does to other people.

You have a beef with some seller, constantly report all their listings and ebay doesn't remove them?

I love to know your story that you's make excuses for someone who found guilty by e federal judge of:

Trademark infringement
False advertising
Computer fraud
common law fraud
unfair competition
civil conspiracy
tortious interference
fraudulent misrepresentation

Did I mention a $5 million lawsuit judgement against the same individual.

A individual who other YouTubers have evidence of harassing them.

A individual whose followers have made death threats against YouTubers who have been critical of said scammer.

And here we find scammer using his eBay account feedback to sell scam get rich selling on eBay course along with bulk lots of goods to newbs who don't know better.

Where did you get the idea that you somehow owned your eBay feedback or could use it off eBay.

Your feedback comments are eBay's intellectual property!

But somehow you think eBay is o.k. with someone using their intellectual property to sell scam eBay reseller courses and bulk lots of junk to newbs you don't know better; as well as eBay supplies from Amazon, accounting software, CPA services as well as selling goods on Facebook.

And what do you expect eBay to do about any of this? Ebay has no enforcement power over YouTube complaints. And there is no eBay rule that says a seller can't have a judgement against them, nor do they have any way to vet that. Can you imagine eBay running a public records search on 25 million sellers in the 32 countries in which they do business?

And despite your protestations, there is absolutely no rule that says an eBay seller can't reference their feedback offsite. None. Zero. Zip. Zilch. Nada.

I'm getting a strong feeling you were one of the "newbs who don't know better".

I'm still waiting for you to provide a link to the eBay policy that states that feedback is their intellectual property and can't be referenced offsite.

Again I really don't think this would violate the stock photos policy and honestly it would suck if it did because it would leave a seller with multiple used same items stuck listing one at a time. Also if eBay isn't pulling them I'd say it's not something they are concerned about either. Sellers can't list multiple fixed price listings of the same item. That they will get in trouble for. They have to list them as multiple quantity listings.

Yes it is.

Seller is reusing photos of one used device as stock photos for each used item in a multiple quantity listing.

Stock photos of new or used item are not allowed for used items!

I hope eBay enjoys its criminal complaint.
